

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXII.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1894.

NO. 15

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—The academy girls gave an entertainment last Friday evening.
—The republican candidates had a speaking at East Tenn., last Saturday.
—The advertising car of Forepaugh's show was here Tuesday advertising his circus for May 5th.
—Mr. George McGinnis and wife, of Memphis, Tenn., were here to attend the Perkins-O'Mara wedding.
—Mrs. Moore, mother of Mr. M. A. Moore, is very sick and as she is so old she is not expected to recover.
—Benj. C. Chapin gave a lecture at the Congregational church last Monday night. The house was filled with people and everyone enjoyed hearing Mr. Chapin very much.

—Judge Stinson appointed K. D. Perkins and S. L. Pence to appear before the State board of equalization. They went down last week but have not heard what the board has done yet.
—The meeting still continues at the M. E. church with several visiting pastors present. Rev. L. L. Pickett left Monday. Mrs. J. M. Mahan, who has been very sick is improving.
—Dr. P. A. Pennington spent Sunday in London. Dr. A. Gatlin and Judge Finley are in Louisville this week. Mr. G. A. Denham took his son Samuel to Gettysburg to attend school. Miss Maggie Craig was called home last Saturday on account of the serious illness of her mother, who lives near Grays Station.

—The base ball season was opened at the fair grounds last Saturday by two local teams. On Sunday some of our boys thought they would have a little game but Marshal Wagner interfered and the boys promised Judge Tye they would not break the Sabbath any more if he would let them off this time, which he did.

—Miss Fannie O'Mara, daughter of Col. Thomas O'Mara, and Mr. William Perkins, member of the firm of Mahan & Co., were married at the bride's home last Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock. The couple left immediately for Cincinnati where they will spend a few days and then visit relatives of the bride at Hustonville.

—Mr. W. R. Durham has gone to Pennsylvania to inspect the carriage factory, which a company has been organized at this place to buy. If the machinery, &c., prove to be what the people expect a building will be begun at once and in a few months Williamsburg will be prepared to furnish the Southern States with the finest quality of carriages and two wheeled carts.

—Wednesday evening last Squire Ike Johnson shot Wm. Jones at his home about 10 miles east of here. It was reported here the next day that Jones was dead but that proved untrue and the prospects are he will recover. Jones had been intimate with Johnson's daughter and persisted in going with her when her father objected. That evening Jones went to Johnson's home and was talking to the young lady when Johnson ordered him to leave, some words were passed and Johnson shot Jones with a shot gun loaded with No. 2 shot.

DANVILLE, BOYLE COUNTY.

(Advocate.)

—Mr. E. C. Gaines, of Lincoln, the original discoverer of the genuine Count of Monte Cristo, was in town to day.
—In answer to a pressing popular demand, the tuneful opera, The Pirates of Penzance, will be repeated at the Danville Opera House on the evening of the 8th of June.

—Wyatt Hughes claims the boss mule colt of the season—three feet eight inches when foaled. E. W. Lee's brood mare, Tenerine, foaled twin colts to Imp. Deceiver, but the larger one died.

—Mr. A. B. Robertson, while taking a spin on his bicycle yesterday afternoon, was thrown to the road and received a sprain on the left arm, which will keep him indoors for several days.

—Bishop T. U. Dudley has consented to visit our city on Wednesday, May 30th, and will deliver, on the evening of that day, beginning at eight o'clock, at the Opera House, his famous lecture, entitled "The Historic Christ."

—Those in favor of the licensed saloon system at Junction City are preparing to make a fight for the enjoyment of their desires. An endeavor will be made to get two vacancies in the city council filled with gentlemen favorable to saloons, and then secure from the council the right to operate them. Judge Sautley's decision in the Rowland case has inspired the saloonists with hope.

—About 35 of those who professed Christianity during the late series of meetings at the Methodist church were formally received into fellowship Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. W. F. Taylor. The series of special union service which have been conducted by the First and Second Presbyterian churches for two weeks past, were brought to a close last night, after accomplishing great good. A number of additions were made to both congregations.

—The terms of 14 democratic senators and 16 republicans expire March 4th next.

LANCASTER, CARRARD COUNTY.

—About 12 or 15 Lancaster "Kay Peas" will go to Stanford to-night to assist in initiating a lot of candidates.

—Billy Wearen came over from Stanford Tuesday on his bicycle. He claims to have made the trip in 15 minutes.

—Messrs. W. S. O'Neal, John S. Gill, L. F. Hubble, Geo. M. Patterson are attending the district meeting of the W. C. T. U. at Kirksville this week.

—Col. Copeland, a noted lecturer, will deliver one of his famous lectures at the court-house next Monday evening. As it is to be given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society, a good crowd will attend.

—The new stock law is certainly a good one. It has encouraged citizens to plant shade trees and improve the side walks all over town. Some have removed their front fences entirely and it adds greatly to the beauty of the yards.

—Dr. Tom Hood, of Lexington, is here visiting his sister. Mr. Brown Cogar has returned from Harrodsburg. Circuit Clerk Mason sends word back from Chicago that his brother George is much better and is out of danger.

—Dr. Kinnaird, president of the water company, tells us that they will advertise this week for bids on building the power house. It is to be located between the flour mills and old planing mill and will be about 60x100 feet, built of brick and one story high. This begins to look like business. The company is thinking of boring an artesian well near the depot and if successful they will not have to go to the river for their supply of water.

BRODHEAD, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Mr. Jonas McKinzie and wife, of Mt. Vernon, visited Bro. Pike and family. Mrs. Orus Bowers was in town Monday.

—Dr. J. G. Carpenter, of Stanford, paid our town a flying visit on his way to Quail. Mr. Thomas Cherry is putting this week in at Cincinnati. Mr. W. B. Ray, of Lebanon, is here in the interest of his spoke business. Mr. A. E. Albright has about closed a contract and secured the service of a second party to adorn the interior of his new and beautiful dwelling. Mr. R. S. Martin went to Junction City this week.

—The grim monster, death, has been visiting our community. He came to the home of Mr. Reuben DeBord in the form of consumption, and took from that humble home the wife and mother, leaving a broken hearted husband and four little children to mourn her loss. He next visited the home of Mr. Stephen Commons, and in the form of dropsy of the heart, robbed that home of the husband and father, leaving a wife and a few little children to make their way through this world the best they can. And then again his power and effects have been felt and seen in the form of alcoholic liquors, and in a mysterious way taken from this life a young man by the name of John Nadyke, whose body was found about 14 miles from here by a lady, an account of which you had Tuesday. The coroner's jury found that he had been dead ever since the last of February and that his death probably resulted from intoxicating liquors.

HUBBLE.

—Farmers are availing themselves of this nice corn planting weather. W. R. Watson has moved to his farm near here. We are glad to welcome him and his good wife among us. Miss Lizzie Simpson has returned to her home at Marksburg, after a visit among friends here. Some titus, mumps and sore eyes, have been reported in this community. Mr. Bob McCauley has rented the Blackberry place of S. M. Spoonamore, and will move soon. Call and see our local wool dealer before selling elsewhere. A. C. Carman is able to be out again. Gentry Bros. have sold two car loads of hay delivered in Stanford at 45c. J. J. Walker has been to escort the remains of his esteemed friend, Elder J. C. Frank to his last resting place in Flemingsburg. Mrs. Chris Engelman is in from Missouri visiting relatives and friends.

—Miss Pollard reiterates that she will not go on the stage. She says she has been offered all the way from $50 to $1,000 a night, but she will not go on the stage, lecture or join an opera company. Said she: "I will try to take up a new life I shall study as I have never studied before, and then when I am equipped for it I shall take up writing and always over a nom de plume. I realize that I have forfeited my right to friends, but by giving the world all of my abhorrent secrets I have thrown them off myself, and now I can hope to do my work without having it stamped with them, and perhaps by my work I shall be able to accomplish a little good in the world, after all."

To produce Webster's International Dictionary required the diligent toil of 100 scholars of world wide reputation, for the full period of 10 years. This work made changes in the text of the Unabridged in 87,000 instances and recognizes about 100,000 words which have come into usage in the last 30 years in this country.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—Elder J. H. Riffe will preach at the Baptist church at Hustonville next Sunday, 22nd, at 11 A. M.

—There are men who count on getting to heaven because they sometimes give away an old coat.

—The State Convention of The King's Daughters and Sons will be held in Owensboro, April 26-27.

—There were 238 professions of religion and 206 additions to the fellowship of the Ardmore church, Missouri, as the result of a Baptist meeting.

—Rev. Sanford M. Logan, of Virginia, will preach at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening. He is a son of Dr. J. V. Logan, of Central University.

—Evangelist Fife's meeting at Mayeville closed with 530 conversions. Nearly all the town followed him to the depot and a regular prayer meeting was held on the platform.

—According to the Baptist Seminary catalogue there have been 267 matriculations this term against 360 last year. Twenty-eight States, District of Columbia, Canada, England, Manitoba and Germany are represented.

—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, will meet in Memphis, May 2, and will consist of 341 members, of whom nearly one-half are laymen. It is proposed to cut down the number of delegates, under the idea that the body is too large to be effective.

—Bro. Joe Hopper's meeting at Paris continues with 12 additions. The Kentuckians say: As we listen to the "old, old story," so tenderly told by the devoted servant of the Master, as he pleads with the impenitent, it is hard to realize how men can reject such pressing overtures of mercy.

—At a Mormon baptizing near Lewisburg, W. Va., one of the converts became very happy and grabbing the preacher around the neck, pulled him under the water with him. While he held him on the bottom of the river the worked-up convert shouted that he had drowned the world, the flesh and the devil.

—President W. P. Harvey, of the Western Recorder, offers a ticket from Louisville to Dallas, Texas, and return free to any one who wishes to go to the Baptist Convention, who will send either the names of 15 new subscribers for a year, with $30, or of 30 new subscribers for six months with $30. The price of the ticket is $26.65.

—The National Christian League for the promotion of social purity at New York has issued a statement defining its position toward Col. Breckinridge, in which it is recommended to "make his life stand out as an example and a warning, lest condonation lead to corruption, and corruption sap the vitality of the church, injure society, imperil the home and destroy the nation."

—Rev. Dr. Weaver is preaching twice daily at the Baptist church, at 10:30 A. M. and 8 P. M. He is one of the front-rank preachers of his denomination, and his sermons are instructive and entertaining to both old and young. He has been pastor of the Chestnut street Baptist church, Louisville, for 30 long years, and is loved by everybody. He held a meeting here in 1868, at which time Rev. J. L. Burrus was pastor. The oldest members of the church here did not recognize him, however, when he arrived this week, 26 years having changed his beard from red to white as snow. There have been no additions since last report.

Bobbitt Versus Widows.

(To the Editor of Interior Journal.)

CRAE ORCHARD, APRIL 19.—I never intend to cast another anchor, for launch another harpoon into the matrimonial sea of widowhood. My wealthy old bachelor friend, George Holmes, says if he ever marries at all, he intends to have a sweet sixteen. It matters not how old he may be, 80 or 90 years. And my friend George is right, when we come with our age and wealth we demand youth and beauty in exchange. Wealth implies luxury, and age implies experience, youth implies gentleness and obedience and beauty implies loveliness and these qualities are but a fair exchange for what we offer. In the language of Cowper:

I shall never sigh again;
O! for a lodge in some rich widow's nest
Some vast continuity of cash,
Where the soul all untrammelled shall be at rest

With no thought of daily hash,
Where broad-cloth coats and silken hats abound
Which Fortune's lavish hand has thickly strewn around.

Last week I was invited by that elegant gentleman, Mr. Hoffman, to dine at the Springs with the belle of New York. She is elegant, and lovely, and her chief attraction is she is not a widow. Why, what is the matter with the widows? Nothing much, except one, on my second visit demanded the engagement ring and another on my third visit demanded my broken head for her broken heart.

FONTAINE FOX BOBBITT.

—Nelson Robinson, of Pineville, was arrested at Paintsville and taken home. He is charged with appropriating from $300 to $500 of the city's money.

HUSTONVILLE.

—Miss Julia Staggs was in town Tuesday shopping.

—The Christian Endeavor met at Mr. John S. Murphy's last Friday night and an elegant repast was served to the members at the proper hour.

—Mr. Doc Drye, the jolly young man, of Hustonville, is now hard at work in his new saloon. Doc worked hard for his cause and he succeeded.

—The horse show of last Saturday was a credit to Hustonville; some of our fine stock as Kentucky affords were on exhibition. There was a good crowd in town, and splendid order all day; no drunken men were seen on the streets.

—Mr. George Frye, on old resident of Hustonville, and Miss Bell Portman, of Liberty, were united in wedlock at the bride's home at Liberty. They are both of great social standing in the county and have a host of friends to wish them success.

—Mr. Joe Baker, of Jellico, Tenn., has been in town for the last two days. The Hustonville girls cut quite a figure in Jellico society. W. M. Boone, of Lancaster, is in town with his patent harrow. It is a great thing. It is on exhibition at Mr. John Goode's farm.

—Mr. Uriah Dunn, who has been in the south trading in mules, during the winter, is home again. Mr. Jones Bangman, who is attending school at Lexington, returned to that place, from a visit to his home. Mrs. Donaldson, with her daughter, have left for their home, near Shelbyville.

—The prohibitionists have given up the cause. There is some talk of their erecting a saloon, and why should they not? If they are compelled to have it in their midst they should have some of the income of the money making stuff. Let her go boys, each man for himself.

—Miss Bettie Woodson, of near Hustonville, is very ill and is not expected to live but a few hours at this writing. Mr. E. L. Powell has gone to look after his business, and visit relations, near Columbia. Mr. G. D. McCarty, of Mt. Salem, has gone to Cincinnati to lay in his spring stock of goods.

—A debate was gotten up between the girls and boys of Christian College Tuesday afternoon, the subject being: Affirmed that Machinery has been Beneficial to Mankind. The affirmative was held by Misses Victoria Bishop, Pearl Rose, Lucile and Mattie Wyatt, Erma Morse and Ada Cunningham, the negative by Messrs J. W. North, Geo. Goode and Cloyd Johnson. It was decided in favor of the negative.

—The debating society known as the Beech Grove Society but now of Lyceum League of America, met last Friday night at Dodd's school house, their place of meeting. As always the house was full. The subject for debate was one of great attraction, being Woman's Suffrage. The subject was well handled by Messrs Dinwiddie and McClure for the affirmative, Messrs Donaldson, Goode and North the negative, but the judges thought they should have a right to vote and decided so. The society will meet again Friday, April 27. The subject for debate is: Resolved that Railroad Traffic on Sunday should be Prohibited. All are invited to come.

In an editorial demanding that Col. Breckinridge shall tempt fate and public patience no longer and withdraw from the race for Congress, the Louisville Post draws this o'er true picture: Col. Breckinridge himself is his own worst accuser, and his own counsel have by their most labored pleas made longer tolerance impossible. We may put aside every witness for the plaintiff, silence every argument of her counsel, place the most impartial judge on the bench in the seat of Judge Bradley, and the verdict of the people would be the same. For 10 years Col. Breckinridge has lived in violation of the law of God and man. He has been unfaithful to his most sacred vows. He has forgotten wife and children, he has imposed on friendship, he has wronged a confiding constituency, he has dishonored his State, and all that he might gratify his lusts, sacrifice to his passion, and indulge every selfish instinct of his nature. Living this life on the one side, on the other he has stood at the bar, in Congress, on the platform pleading for justice, for education, for morality and religion. Striking at the very foundation of the family in the dark, he has placed himself forward as the exponent of all the family virtues and as the devoted father and friend.

—Autocracy in the White House, treason in the Senate and absenteeism in the House have put upon the party of the people more burdens than it will or can bear, and there is lying down all along the line. Never before was a victorious army so betrayed by the egotism, venality and desertion of its leaders.—Louisville Times.

—It is currently reported that the Governor has asked the resignation of Adjutant-General Wickliffe to take effect May 1. When the resignation is secured Senator Gross will be again appointed Adjutant-General, holding the two offices.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

For County Judge.....JAS. WALKER GIVENS

 " " Attorney.....J. B. PAXTON
 " " Sheriff.....T. D. NEWLAND
 " " Assessor.....E. D. KENNEDY
 " " Jailor.....G. W. DEBORD

It is not often that a man is vindicated by his enemies, but Thomas B. Reed has lived to see the ruling which caused him to be dubbed the Czar and a tyrant of the most unrelenting kind, endorsed and adopted by the democrats. It is this in effect, though the rule which was passed by the House 212 to 47, differs somewhat from the ex-speaker's manner of counting a quorum, in that the autocratic power which Reed delegated to himself is not given to the presiding officer. It requires that the speaker shall name two members, one from each side of the pending question, if practicable, who shall take their places at the clerk's desk, to tell the names of at least enough members who are in the hall of the House during the roll call, who do not respond, when added to those responding, to make a quorum. In his speech at the close of the Congress over which he presided, Mr. Reed said that the future world prove his position the only tenable one, as it was a long stride in the direction of responsible government, and his words seem to have been prophetic. The democracy has had to learn of its enemies.

It would seem that a man who had studied the Bible sufficiently to be able to lecture on "Saul of Tarsus," ought to have read the 9th chapter of Genesis with more profit than did George R. Wendling, but it appears that he hadn't. Along about the 20th and 21st verses of the chapter referred to it is chronicled that Noah brewed the first wine of which we have any account, and he drank thereof till he was so blind drunk, he pulled off all his clothes and made a spectacle of himself. Ever since then men who have tarried long at the wine cup or looked even upon the wine while it is red, have made as big fools of themselves and Mr. Wendling is no exception. After lecturing at Lexington he went on a tear and while he did not do the Noah act, he behaved almost as unseemly, and came near being run in. The result was he missed his engagement next night at Richmond and made a highly cultivated audience indignant. Alas! that men should continue to put in their mouths that which steals away their senses.

The death of the wife of Defaulter Dick Tate has put his friends and other sentimentally disposed people in Frankfort to renewed effort to secure a pardon for him, but if Gov. Brown is the man we take him to be, he will let that monumental thief die where he has hid himself since robbing the people who so often honored him. There might have possibly been some excuse to let the fugitive come home to see the wife he had disgraced and wronged, die, but since she is gone there is no earthly reason for his return to Kentucky except to undergo penal servitude for his crime.

CALIFORNIA democrats take no stock in Senator Hill. Three thousand of them in mass meeting assembled at San Francisco, resolved that his utterances on the floor of the Senate in a recent speech are traitorous in their purposes, false in their assumptions, absurd in their logic and excite the indignation and derision of the Democracy of California, and his undemocratic course with reference to the Wilson bill is repudiated. The democracy all over the country repudiated Mr. Hill two years ago, and it has had numerous occasions since to prove the wisdom of the act.

THE newspaper correspondents at Lexington must think that the world is greatly interested in Charles J. Bronston. On an average of once a week they send out the information that he will not run for Congress as if anybody cared whether he will or not. Mr. Bronston is a great man, doubtless, but too much of one thing, even if it be ever so good, finally induces nausea. Let his last declination stand for good and all.

THERE are quite a number of offices or collector of customs in small places like Paducah which cost a great deal more than they are worth. The total receipts of these useless offices last year were $5,000, and their expenditures $90,001. An economically administered government demands that these sinecures be abolished and the bill pending in Congress to that end ought to be adopted.

Mrs. BLACKBURN denies most emphatically that she rendered any pecuniary assistance to Miss Pollard in the prosecution of her suit, with which she had nothing to do save to testify as she felt it her duty to. Where the young woman got the money to hire high priced lawyers is still a mystery which promises to be as unsolvable as the conundrum: Who struck Wm. Patterson?

In his admirable speech in Louisville last week Gov. Knott had the courage to designate a spade by its proper name in speaking of the pension enormity. Last year it amounted to $159,357,000, which is more than $40,000,000 more than the cost of maintaining the German army during the same time. The expenditure will amount this year to from $186,000,000 to $189,000,000. Fully $1,000,000,000 of this is paid to people no more entitled to it than the speaker, who said he made the statement deliberately that the ultimate object of the reckless appropriation was to influence votes. If the soldiers thought the pension appropriation was a bribe they would spurn it, but nevertheless, it has that effect in thousands of instances. He denounced the expenditure, not because of the money it took from the treasury, but because it was one of the pestilential brood of consequences of a violation of Jeffersonian democracy. The expenditure degrades the dignity of American citizenship, demoralizes labor, and is sheer robbing, clad in the garb of statutory enactment. He favored honest pensions and pleaded for a pruning of the pension lists.

THE Louisville Leader, the new republican paper, is to make its appearance May 15. With the Commercial in the field, we can not see that the new venture will fill a long felt want. True, the Commercial claims to be independent, but it is only a claim, unsupported by anything that has yet appeared in its columns. It is republican first, last and all the time. The capital stock of the new paper is said to be $500,000 and that $200,000 has been paid in.

WE are glad to observe that our young friend, John A. Baird, has been promoted to city editor of the Louisville Times. He is one of the most laborious and capable young men on the city press and will, we are sure, fill his new place with that conscientious fidelity that has characterized all his efforts. Mr. Sam McKee, Jr., who has held the position satisfactorily, will become dramatic critic for the Courier-Journal.

ON our fourth page is a picture of Thomas Brackett Reed as he appeared after losing his hat and taking the largest one left that he could find. He has a very large head naturally, but the largest hat made in the country would look just as small on his head now, since his patent on counting a quorum has been adopted even by those who heaped contumely upon him, when he first applied it to practice.

IT may be set down as sure as anything in this uncertain world of ours that there is not a ghost of a chance for the populist candidate for Congress in the 2d district, or Tom Pettit would not have declined the nomination. Tom Tit never gives up if there is an earthly show. The pops ain't in it in Kentucky or elsewhere any more, it is refreshing to record.

IN its effort to print the news while it is fresh, the INTERIOR JOURNAL sometime overleaps itself. For instance it announced a week ago that Editor A. J. Casey, of the Owensboro Inquirer, had married a wife, when the fact was that the interesting event did not occur till Wednesday.

JUDGE CASWELL BENNETT seems to have made his calling sure for a re-nomination for the appellate judgeship in the 1st district, and that means that his election is assured. All of his opponents have retired from the track, leaving him at present a walk-over.

THE wife of Jeff Gullett, of Magoffin, choked her step son to death, while he lay upon a sick bed. She hated little fellow, but his loss is not her gain. She is in jail and will be hung if sentimentalism doesn't take the place of sense and justice.

THE Hon. Gus Richardson, of Meade, has at last got a job. It is an $1,800 clerkship in the collector's office at Louisville; not a very exalted one to be sure, but sufficient to gratify the present desires of this perennial office seeker.

UP to the hour of going to press we have had no information that Willie has paid Madeline that $15,000. He ought to walk up to the captain's office and settle. He seems to have had that worth of worth of fun.

COL. CRADDOCK has applied for and gotten an increase of pension. No body will object. The few survivors of the Revolutionary war are welcome to all they can get out of the government.

CHAUNCEY DREW says he was only in fun when he said in St. Louis that he was a candidate for the presidency. The statement is superfluous. The country took it as a joke.

—AND YOU'LL REMEMBER ME.
 (By Warman.)

One evening as the sun went down
 Among the golden hills,
 And silent shadows soft and brown,
 Crept over vales and hills,
 I watched the dusky bats a-wing
 Dip down the dusky lea;
 Harkening, heard a maiden sing,
 "And you'll remember me."

"When other lips and other hearts,"
 Came drifting through the trees;
 "In language whose excess imparts,"
 Was borne upon the breeze.
 Ah! love is sweet and hope is strong,
 And life's a summer sea.
 A woman's soul is in her song,
 "And you'll remember me."

Still rippling from the throbbing throat,
 With joy akin to pain,
 There seemed a tear in every note,
 A sob in every strain;
 Soft as the twilight shadows creep
 Across the listless lea,
 The singer sang her love to sleep,
 With: "You'll remember me."

TREMENDOUS!

Is the most expressive word we can find in our vocabulary that will give you a conception of the extremely low prices that still prevail with us. A number of our customers have asked us how we can afford to sell goods so much lower than our competitors, whose facilities for buying and selling close are to all outward appearances as good as ours. That is where the mistake comes in; for having numerous places of business in this and other States, we necessarily buy in larger quantities and of course get closer prices. But what principally tells the tale is that we have

THE CASH.

Factories in the East need that cash; we need their goods; so in consequence we have bought at our own price and you shall have the benefit of it. For we intend to sell them at about one-half of their original value and we intend to make this week the chance of a life time for our patrons to secure the most Won Second Money in $500 Stakes at Versailles.

Won Third Money in $500 Stakes at Nicholasville.
Won Fourth Money in $500 Stakes at Danville.

Eagle Bird is a beautiful brown with small star, stands over 16 hands high, has flowing mane and heavy tail.

Eagle Bird was sired by the great King Eagle, winner of more than 40 Blue Ties.

First dam by Star Eagle, son of Cabell's Lexington; 2nd dam by Hamlet Denmark, son of Washington Denmark; 3rd dam by Harris' Denmark, son of Miller's Denmark.

Eagle Bird will stand the season of 1894, at my farm two miles West of Stanford, on the Shelby Pike.

At $20 to Insure a Living Colt.

Money or cash note will be required when the fact is ascertained.

Eagle Bird is one of the grandest show horses in Kentucky. Monte Cristo, his uncle, is the only horse shown in the Blue Grass Circuit, that he did not defeat. He could be relied upon to make a gallant show whenever called upon and always finished as game as a race horse, although some of the "knowing ones" pronounced him no good. As a breeder of fine, high-styled, good colored colts, he is not surpassed by any horse in Kentucky.

Mares from a distance will be furnished grass after May 1st at $1.50 per month, and must be paid at the removal of mares. Care taken to prevent accidents and escapes, but not responsible should any occur.

Parting with or removal of mares forfeits the insurance.

Will also stand a fine mule Jack at $7 to insure a living colt.

SADDLE HORSE CLASSIFICATION.

The World's Fair Display of Gaited Animals Evolved It.

After witnessing the magnificent exhibit of the gaited saddle horses at the Columbian exposition in August and September last Chief Buchanan was very anxious to have the exhibitors return their horses as a special feature of the postponed show of thoroughbred and trotting bred horses, which was held a few weeks later, and with that end in view he requested General John B. Castleman to prepare a suitable classification. This request afforded the president of the National Saddle Horse Breeders' association an opportunity to set forth in tangible form his clearly defined ideas of the utility of the gaited horse under the saddle and also in harness. It is the pride of the breeders of this class of horses that they admirably answer both purposes, for a well bred, thoroughly broken saddle will use his gait under saddle and when put in harness will hold strictly to a trot, and as he is fitted in form and finish for harness purposes he becomes a most valuable "combination" horse. A classification with prizes was prepared and submitted to Chief Buchanan, and only the lack of funds prevented its adoption. We take pleasure in printing it and commending it to fair managers the country over as worthy of incorporation in their premium lists, suiting the amount of prize money, of course, to their several abilities:

We remember when a boy of being forbidden to ride the family horses because it would "spoil" them for driving purposes. It is high time that such an idea should be shelved, if indeed it anywhere exists at this day. A gaited horse trots when he is made to trot, racks when he gets the signal and canters when put to that pace. He knows all his gait's thoroughly, and he knows as well his driver that the trot is the gait required in shafts or at the pole. The adoption of the classification suggested will materially assist in the development of a class of horses of the highest possible utility in the city and on the farm.—Breeder's Gazette.

Poultry In the Garden.

A subscriber wishes to know if it is good farming and profitable to allow chickens, geese and ducks to run in among small fruits, or will the poultry destroy the fruits?

Geese ought to be kept out of all pasture ground or garden, because their droppings seem to poison vegetation, even grasses. Other stock will not feed after them. They need a small pasture by themselves.

Ducks are pretty good gardeners. They are scavengers and insect destroyers and frequently are let into the garden because of these traits, but they ought to be watched. Let them in for an hour at a time while you yourself are busy in the garden.

I have known chickens in gardens seemingly harmless, but I think that during the ripening of small fruits all kinds of poultry had better be excluded. That is the safest way. They are hard on peas and beans just coming up.—C. W. M. in St. Louis Republic.

He Knew.

They had been talking of the different occupations of men and of men in general when the teacher asked the head of the class if he knew what a wag was. Failing to give a satisfactory answer, the little boy spoke up. "I know, mam." "Well, what is a wag?" "A happy dog's tail, mam," said the boy promptly.—Boston Courier.

UNDERWOOD BROTHERS, Hubler, Ky.

"OUT OF SCHOOL."

The clock strikes two in my parlor,
With its soft and silvery chime;
There are voices and merry laughter,
And I know that now is the time
When those little rosy cheeks
Whose tasks for the day are o'er,
Will run up the old oak staircase
And in at my open door.

Their fond little arms are round me;
Soft lips to my own are pressed;
Two bright little laughing faces
With merriest smiles are dressed.
But one is so sad and tearful,
As if lies against my own.
And the poor little heart, and tender,
Thus utters its childish moan:

"Oh, why, mamma, do you send me
Where the hours are all so long?
I try so hard with the lessons,
But I always get them wrong.
At home, with you, I am happy,
But there I must keep the rule.
When I am a great grown lady,
I never will go to school."

Oh, how shall I tell my baby,
With her head of golden hair,
With the soul through her bright eyes
Shining.
So free from sorrow and care,
That my lessons are only longer,
And sterner and stricter the rule—
That we who are great grown ladies,
We never are "out of school."

A LOVER'S QUARREL.

The Story of a Jealous Girl and Her Lesson.

"Don't touch me or speak to me," said Nina Wilbur, as her betrothed husband, Ashton Craig, came up the steps of the low veranda of the "Farmer's Rest."

"Oh, I mean it. I am not one who does not know when she has been insulted."

"Nina, you do not know anything yet," said Ashton. "When I have told you—"

"Told me?" said Nina. "Well, I scarcely need telling. You invite me to the races, and when you are almost there leave me alone here until they are over."

"I left you to save a life," said Ashton.

"The girl was not thrown out," said Nina. "It was well enough for you to stop the horses and carry her in when she pretended to faint, but to send me a note telling me to stop where I was until you came for me, and stay all this while—why, as I said, it is an offense beyond forgiveness."

"As I said, you know nothing about it," said young Craig.

"If the girl had been killed there were plenty to take care of her beside her escort, whom the people told the landlady was not hurt, though he was thrown out."

"Oh, I've been nearly wild with mortification, and that good old soul—ignorant, of course, but so sympathetic—how she has pitied me!"

"You don't seem the sort to be used so, miss," she said. "I'm going to give you her very words, plain as they were, and so impressive. 'You don't know men folks yet, my dear,' she said. 'When you are my age you will, to your cost. That girl that was run away with is one of the sort that come to the races in crowds. When they get their eyes on a well-dressed young man they don't take 'em off in a hurry. She came to quick enough once she got things the way she liked 'em, and he's been with her on the grand stand all this time, while you've been cooling your heels here, my dear.' That's what she—an experienced old grandmother—told me."

"Blessed old lady," said Ashton, "and you accept her views?"

"Why, as she said, if all had been right you'd have sent me one to bring me over, instead of telling me to stay here," said Nina. "And she said things like that often happened, only usually the parties 'were all much of a muchness'—of course I don't know exactly what she means by that," faltered Nina.

"Exactly!"

"Not exactly—but it is evident that a few hours' intercourse with an experienced old lady like that is a liberal education for a respectable girl."

"Well, you prefer this version to any I can offer," said Ashton, coldly.

"Oh, you cannot slip out of it like that," said Nina.

"I hope you have had some lunch," Ashton said, ignoring her remark.

"She made me take some salt clam soup and a miserable piece of pie," said Nina. "If I had had my nurse with me I should have paid my bill and gone home, but I was not prepared for this insulting conduct."

Ashton walked away and paid the bill, and soon the vehicle in which they were to return was ready. But all the way home he kept perfect silence, and made no attempt either to explain anything or seek forgiveness.

Nina was visiting an aunt, and at the door of this lady's residence he paused, assisted her to alight and drove away with a very polite bow, never once looking back, as she saw plainly.

By this time she, being a woman, was nearly mad to hear from his lips what had happened—to listen to some story which might give her a chance to forgive him.

Really, it seemed impossible, when she thought the matter quietly over, that Ashton could have played so low and so shabby a trick.

The old woman had influenced her strangely. At best it was very wrong of him—very unkind—but if he had only confessed the truth and pleaded and offered excuses—at least, she would have been able to play a dignified part.

Now she felt that she had neither spoken nor behaved as a lady should—not, not kindly, as one should even to a friend.

She should have listened to him before she burst out into that tirade, and she entered her aunt's house with such a face that that lady cried:

"Why, what's the matter—where is Mr. Craig—why didn't he come in? I've a lovely high tea ready. Why, Nina, I believe you've quarreled with him."

"Don't speak of Mr. Craig," said Nina. "He is the most contemptible creature—I wish I had never seen him."

And then she burst into tears and was forced to tell the story—her version of it, of course.

She meant it to be the true one, but in the case of a quarrel, people are apt to make the best story for themselves, in very self-defense.

"We were very near the race course," she said, "when a carriage clashed past us—the gentleman was thrown and the lady was in danger. Ashton made me alight and go into a little country hotel by the roadside—then dashed on, and, somehow, I cannot tell how, stopped the horses. The girl was not thrown, and I saw Ashton take her in his arms and carry her up the steps of an elegant hotel not far away. Later he sent me a note, telling me not to come over on any account, but to stay where I was until he came for me. He came, after the races were over, and made neither explanation nor apology."

"Why, that seems impossible, Nina," said her aunt. "What did you say?"

"Well, I was not very amiable," said Nina. "But could you expect that?"

The aunt shook her head. "He should have explained," she said. "Nina could not bring herself to tell her aunt what the old landlady had suggested, or that she had actually repeated her words to Ashton. It all seemed so low and coarse, now that she thought it over."

"I suppose he forgot me," she said. "In that case," said her aunt, "never forgive him; I would not."

And Nina went to her room in tears, and during the wakeful night, resolved to return Ashton's ring on the morrow, which she did by express, with a scornful word or two written upon the most elegant note paper in her possession.

After this she told her aunt that she would go home at once; and that lady, who, though delighted to entertain a niece who was in a cheerful mood, had an aversion to tears and low spirits, agreed that it was perhaps the best thing she could do under the circumstances to go home to her dear mamma, who would give her the best advice possible.

Poor Nina! As her journey over, she walked up the garden path leading to the door of her suburban home, how heavy was her heart. She began to realize what the old minister and her grandfather meant by saying "all is vanity."

She had been so proud of Ashton and of her engagement to him, and she was ashamed to tell her friends that all was over, and then the heartbreak of it!

Now that there was no going back, she felt that she could forgive him almost anything. And just as she came to this there was a sudden rush of sisters down the path, a kissing and embracing and incoherent cries of: "Oh! she's ever so much better; there's not the least reason to be anxious. We know you'd come at once. But, oh! how pale you are. And don't you feel proud of Ashton?"

Nina simply stared at them. "What has happened?" she cried. "She doesn't know," cried the younger sister.

"Ma made Ashton promise not to tell her until this morning," said the eldest. "But what did he say to make you come?" said the third sister.

"Oh! you ought to be proud of him; but for him it is terrible to think how we might be grieving now," said the middle sister.

"You know Cousin Rodney came to ask me to go to the races with him," said the eldest sister.

"And we made her go," said the youngest.

"And he didn't understand the horses," said the middle sister. "It was a new team."

"We'll never speak to him again," said all three together.

"Oh, good heavens! Was that mother? Was Rodney driving her?" panted Nina.

"How noble; he never told—he kept his promise," said the eldest sister. "Yes, dear, and Rodney's head was cut open."

"Served him right," cried the chorus. "And ma fainted away, and the doctors thought her dead."

"They all began to cry."

"When Ashton brought her home we all shrieked," said the youngest. "But she is quite well—only we make her lie down, you know, and she'll be so glad we were not frightened."

"Ashton is the noblest creature," chorused the sisters, and Nina, turning as red as she had been pale before, burst into tears.

"And I am the meanest," she confessed. "I did not know whom he had rescued, and I quarreled with him for staying away all day, and sent him back his ring this morning."

"Oh," groaned the chorus, "I don't believe he will ever forgive you, and you do not deserve it."

But just then, looking up, whom did they see entering at the gate but Ashton Craig. And the look he gave them convinced them that he was not in a very angry mood.

Indeed, when poor Nina turned her tear-filled eyes toward him and held out her trembling hands it was impossible for him not to melt outright, and the sisters knew that the best thing to be done was to leave the two together, which they did. And shortly after Nina and Ashton knelt beside the mother's couch, hand in hand, and on Nina's finger shone once more her engagement ring.

"Don't cry; I'm perfectly well, and only ashamed of having fainted from fright," the mother said.

But Nina could not have given a name to all the emotions that mingled in her bosom and sent such a shower of shining tears down her smooth cheeks. Only she knew that she was at once ashamed and comforted, and that for the first time since their engagement she fully realized how well she loved her betrothed husband and how glad she was that she was soon to be his wife.—Kansas City Times.

How Much Rain Will Fall?

The Weekly Courier-Journal has struck a popular note in its weather guessing contests. A wonderful amount of interest was taken in the offer of $1,000 for the closest guesses to the coldest day and temperature during February, at Louisville, and much valuable information was gathered by subscribers on the subject. This contest has just been decided, there being 28 lucky guessers.

The Weekly Courier-Journal now makes another offer on the same line. For the closest guesses to the amount of rain that will fall at Louisville during the month of May, the Weekly Courier-Journal will give $1,000. This money will be divided into 19 presents—one of $500, two of $100 each, two of $50 each, four of $25 each, and 10 of $10 each. Each guess must be accompanied by $1, to pay for one year's subscription to the Weekly Courier-Journal, the best democratic paper published. The rain fall is scientifically measured, to the hundredth part of an inch. The heaviest rain-fall in May during the past 20 years was seven inches and forty-six hundredths of an inch. The lightest was one inch even. The measurements are made by the Government officials of the Weather Bureau at Louisville. Sample copies of the paper with full particulars of the contest, will be sent free to any address. Write at once, as under no circumstances will any guesses be received after April 30th. Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenson, of Bolan, Worth county, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about a prominent German citizen of St. Paul, Minnesota, who had cured his rheumatism, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their horses were over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them in a week. So sent bottles for sale by Dr. S. G. Hock, Dr. Druggist, St. Paul."

Don't miss the lecture of Col. Copeland on the 24th. The pulpit, the press and the people unite in saying he is one of the greatest lecturers on the American platform. Relick—Mr. J. B. Mershon, the clever blacksmith, is using a tool chest that was brought by his great grandfather from Culpepper Court-house, Va., in 1796. It is still in good repair and looks as if it will be able to do service for years to come. He also has a dish brought from Virginia by the same gentleman at the same time.

Shortly after the prohibition election here our humorous contemporary, the Richmond Register, to keep up its reputation as the Detroit Free Press of Kentucky, printed this paragraph: "How to make a fortune: Go to Stanford and start a drug store." Since its appearance we have received several letters from men, who, taking it in earnest, wanted further information on the subject. No, we do not need any more drug stores. Those we have are fully able to fill our prescriptions, whether for ipecacuanha or spiritus frumenti.

In the garret of the house that County Clerk G. B. Cooper resides there were found the other day some old and interesting documents, yellow with age. One was the discharge papers of Elisha Bailey from the company of mounted volunteers from Kentucky, under the command of Maj. Gen. Samuel Hopkins, dated May 10, 1813, and signed by Capt. George Murrell. Another is a refunding bond signed by Jesse Emerson to Mr. Bailey, whom he had authorized to collect his part of the estates of Richard Jackson and Moses Embree. It is dated April 19, 1827. The house, which is the one owned by the late Winfield Bailey, was built by Judge Montgomery, the father of the late Dr. F. B. Montgomery, and must be 100 years old.

Cyclone.—A strong western wind lifted the roof from the Clemens House in Danville, Wednesday afternoon, and did great damage to a number of private residences. B. F. Phillips was the greatest among the sufferers, his new house being badly injured.

The Whitley county contingent elected Judge Finley president of the Precinct Coal Company, but the Louisville stockholders chose W. E. Grinstead and got out an injunction restraining the former from interfering with the present affairs of the company.

The Magic City, which sprung up in a night, has returned to first principles. A dispatch from Middlesboro says it presents anything but a boom town appearance now. In every direction are gardens. In the west end, streets and town lots have been plowed up and planted in corn. In the east end there are many corn fields planted and even on Cumberland Avenue many lots are planted in gardens.

The meeting was opened by a paper on whooping cough by Dr. F. L. Harrod, of Harrodsburg. It was discussed by Drs. Meyer, Plummer and Manning.

Dr. Joseph Price, of Philadelphia, then read a paper on Laparotomy. Dr. Price is by far better acquainted with this subject than any surgeon in America, having performed the operation over 2,500 times; Dr. Tate, of England, alone having exceeded that number. He spoke for about an hour and afterwards answered such questions as his audience saw fit to ask.

Dr. J. C. Bogle read a paper on a case of a gun shot wound, which was discussed at length by Dr. Price.

At three o'clock the surgical operation of Laparotomy was performed on the wife of Samuel Harris, colored, by Dr. Price and assisted by the other visiting physicians. The same operation will be performed on Mrs. Adams to-day. After the operation a paper was read by Dr. J. G. Carpenter which was liberally discussed. The rest of the afternoon was given to the examination of surgical instruments and matters pertaining to the use of them.

The great surgeon, Dr. Joseph Price, of Philadelphia, is the guest of the Association and is receiving its warmest attentions. Drs. Steele Bailey and J. G. Carpenter entertained him at dinners at their houses and others will do so. He is a Virginian by birth and an honor to her.

In a speech on the evil effects of liquor, Henry Grady, the great Georgia orator, said: "To night it enters a humble home, strikes the roses from a woman's cheeks and to-morrow it challenges the republic in the halls of Congress. To-day it strikes the crust from the lips of the starving child and to-morrow levies tribute from the government itself. There is no cottage in this city humble enough to escape it, no place strong enough to shut it out. It defies the law when it cannot coerce suffrage. It is flexible to cajole, but merciless in victory. It is the moral enemy of peace and order, the spoiler of men and terror of women, the cloud that shadows the face of childhood, the demon that has dug more graves and sent more souls unprepared to judgment than all the pestilences that have wasted lives since God sent the plagues to Egypt, and all wars since Joshua stood before Jericho. It comes to ruin and yet it shall profit mainly by the ruin of your sons and mine. It comes to mislead human souls and crush human hearts under its rumbling wheels. It comes to bring gray-haired mothers down to shame. It comes to change a wife's love into despair and her pride into shame. It comes to still the laughter on the lips of little children. It comes to stifle all the music of the home and fill it with silence and desolation. It comes to ruin your boy and mine, to wreck your home and it knows it must measure its prosperity by the swiftness and certainty with which it wrecks this world."

—"Charley" Moore says in his Blade: Dog Fennell precinct, Fayette county, Ky., is the most famous precinct in the world. Billy Breckinridge, Coxey and I all came from there.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Bits of Information Picked Up by Our Correspondent.

How a Wisconsin Newspaper Man Secured a Bride—One of Senator Vest's Entertaining Reminiscences—Men Who Have Snaps.

[Special Washington Letter.]

Congressman Haugen has a scrapbook full of good stories. One of them is concerning a newspaper man named Will Hooker. While Hooker was managing editor of a paper at Ashland, Wis., he fell in love with the pretty stepdaughter of the wealthy publisher of the newspaper. The latter objected to the union and offered Hooker a monetary consideration if he would move further west. The newspaper man declined, whereupon he was discharged, and he was forced to go to Milwaukee, where he obtained employment. After his disappearance, the stepdaughter announced that the engagement was broken. After an absence of three months, Hooker reappeared, coming in by a country road on horseback. His sister came into town by train at the same time. She, with some friends of Hooker's, made the necessary arrangements, and at noon Hooker quietly but hurriedly walked into the Congregational church. A clergyman was waiting, and at the altar stood the publisher's pretty stepdaughter, surrounded by a group of friends. While on his way to church, Hooker had been recognized by several friends, and he was in haste to have the ceremony ended. "Do you want the complete service?" asked the minister.

"Cut it down to a stick," was Will's reply, resorting to printer's English in his excitement. The preacher looked astonished, but he understood, and soon the knot was tied.

Pages as Lively as Crickets.

The comforts of the press gallery in the senate are far from perfect. A chill and killing draft blows through it all day long, and with its acoustical disadvantage, the thick and uncertain tones of the reading clerk, and the confusion steadily maintained by the pages, it is difficult to follow the senate proceedings with ease and accuracy. While the selection of boys is as good as probably can be made, their rules of government might be improved. They dash in concert for each senator who calls, as rushers make for a football; and the spectacle of these uniformed school boys scrambling over the senate floor is far from encouraging to an admirer of dignity and order. The other day two of these impetuous and ungoverned youths collided in the central aisle and knocked each other flat upon the floor.

Where Did He Get That Hat?

One day recently Big Tom Reed lost his hat at the capitol. He thinks it was stolen, but he probably laid it down carelessly somewhere, and forgot about it. He has a very large head, and could find nothing around the building that would fit him. When he left for the Shoreham he had on his head a derby three sizes too small, and

A Queer Piece of Mail Matter.

"We find some strange things in the mails," said a railway postal clerk who delivered a tramp to a police officer. When the southern night line train pulled into Sixth street depot Thursday night the clerks of the railway mail service were throwing out the mail bags intended for the post office here and for points further north, when one of them grabbed, as he supposed, a canvas bag, but it proved to be an Italian tramp who had been lying beneath a pile of sacks, canvas and leather. The intruder said he was out of work and money, and being desirous of reaching New York had concealed himself under the mail bags at Charleston, and took his chances of getting through. He was rather disappointed when he found that his trip to New York had been interrupted. He was sent to a police station house.

Senator Vest's Lugalubrious Tale.

Senator Vest tells good stories, all of them entertaining, and many of them apocryphal. He listened one evening recently at Chamberlain's to a marvelous story by Amos Cummings concerning the luckiest man on earth. Cummings really exceeded the story of Monte Christo.

"Speaking of luck," said Senator Vest, "I will tell you a story to which another man in this company can bear witness. One day, while I was in Richmond as a member of the confederate congress, I lost a roll of money, my pay for the month, somewhere in the street on my way from the war office to the hotel. Just as the woman in the Scripture who lost a piece of silver called together her neighbors and friends and sought diligently until she found it; so I called a few fellows together and went on what seemed to be a hopeless quest through the dimly-lighted and snow-covered streets.

The chances were a thousand to one against success; but we hadn't been out fifteen minutes before a young lieutenant who was in our party stooped down and picked up the money. We all talked about our friend's good luck—but see how quickly fortune can turn another face. I was in high glee, and wanted to treat! The searching party now went in search of a place of refreshment, but it was after midnight and it was a good while before we found a place open. At length, however, we were piloted to a saloon to which, pending some repairs, access was had from the street only by a ladder of about a dozen rungs. We all climbed up, considering it a lark, (I was a good deal younger in those days), and after having some refreshment climbed out again. Would you believe it? The lucky fellow who had found my money, missing his footing, fell, and in that fall of ten or twelve feet broke his neck and was instantly killed."

Unequal Pay and Unequal Labor.

The senate is not only more dignified, more awe-inspiring and more pretentious than the house, but it is also more extravagant. The employees of the senate receive better salaries than the employees of the house. The senate has proportionately a great many more employees than are allotted to the house. The eighty-eight senators employ forty-five messengers, and the three hundred and fifty-six representatives only fifty-one. The ratio is fully as great as to other employees. The duties of the house employees are, therefore, far more arduous than those of the employees in the senate. They work six days a week, while the senate employees work only four, and get nearly twenty-five per cent. more salary. The sergeant-at-arms of the house certainly has more work to keep the accounts of the three hundred and fifty-six members than the sergeant-at-arms of the senate to keep the accounts of the eighty-eight senators. And still he gets far less pay. The senate usually adjourns on Thursday to Monday. The house remains in session throughout the week.

Figures from the Pay Rolls.

Messengers in the house receive from $1,000 to $1,200 a year. Messengers of the senate receive $1,440 a year. The stationery clerk in the house gets $1,800 a year; in the senate this clerk receives $2,100. The chief engineer of the house wing gets $1,700 a year; in the senate wing the engineer gets $2,100. An assistant engineer in the house gets $1,200 a year; in the senate these assistants receive $1,440 a year. Firemen in the house get $900, and in the senate $1,005. To go still higher, the clerk of the house receives only $4,500 a year, while the secretary of the senate receives $6,000 a year. The sergeant-at-arms of the house has $4,000 a year, while the sergeant of the senate receives $4,920.

A Man Who Has a Snap.

One of the best positions of an appointive nature in the house of representatives is that of tally clerk. The salary is $3,000 per annum and the work is as near nothing as it can be and yet retain the semblance of sufficient labor to excuse the existence of the office.

It is the duty of the tally clerk whenever there is a ye or nay vote taken upon any proposition to be present and make accurate and complete record of the vote of every member of the house who is present and voting. When the house engages in a siege of filibustering or in a succession of all-night meetings the tally clerk is obliged to go without sleep and really perform exhausting duties, but this occurs so seldom that the office is practically a sinecure.

For example, from the adjournment of the house on March 4, 1893, to the commencement of the extra session in August, a period of five months, the tally clerk had nothing to do but draw his salary of $340 per month with great regularity. During the three months of the extra session he was obliged to be on duty altogether but thirty hours. For this work he received the sum of $1,020. During the present session of congress he has been on duty more than usual on account of the frequent roll calls in the house on the tariff bill. A high salary is paid because a first-class man who is absolutely reliable and accurate cannot be obtained for less money. The present incumbent of the position is as well educated, as intelligent and as competent a man to represent a district in congress as any one of the average members upon the floor of the house. SMITH D. FRY.
